

Where Is Safety in Your Body?

Safety is not just a feeling—it has a location. For some, it lives in the belly, a deep rootedness. For others, it's in the feet—solid contact with the ground. For many, safety has never been felt at all, and that absence is itself a sensation worth mapping.

Close your eyes. Scan your body from head to toe. Where do you feel stable? Where do you feel shaky?

Mark the figure above:

- Draw ROOTS where you feel grounded and stable
- Draw a COCOON or SEED where you feel protected

- Draw CRACKS or GAPS where safety feels unavailable
- Draw a GOLDEN THREAD connecting areas that need tending

Remember: There is no “correct” body map. You are simply witnessing what is true for you right now.
